

Credential brokering: the server accepts one credential and uses a different credential upstream. The model sees neither secret.